

Human Rights

Greetings from Kristīne – a schoolgirl from Latvia who has so wonderful rights – taking part in an international project, meeting new people, studying new things and making new friends.

Children have rights to be together with their families and play together, be cared for from their parents. Children have a lot of questions and they want to get answers. At first they ask to their parents to know everything about everything. Sometimes parents don't know the answer. Then they could think of an interesting story that might be the answer and children will accept that it is funny and very interesting. Every child has the right to get attention and experience from their parents and grandparents because they can teach much and make the child's life more interesting telling them all about their childhood.

Children also have the right to give their knowledge to adults, because children always have good ideas for parents and teachers. People should try to accept the ideas and help them with implementation. That's how the like of working works and that's how children know what they want to be in the future.

I am really happy that I have rights to be with my family, friends and study at school as well as relax at home.

Kristīne, 13 years old